DETAILED ACTION

Reassignment Affecting Application Location

1. The Art Unit location of your application in the USPTO has changed. To aid in correlating any papers for this application, all further correspondence regarding this application should be directed to Art Unit 2617.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed 1/26/2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that the Dent fails to disclose the newly added limitation of mitigating unnecessary channel overlap between access points. The examiner, however, disagrees. Dent teaches the use of frequency reuse in a given area for the mobile stations and base stations to communicate with (col. 13, line44-col. 14, line 2). It is inherent in frequency reuse systems that the frequencies are chosen to specifically to reduce system interference which reads on mitigating unnecessary channel overlap between access points.

Therefore, based on the above remarks, the rejections/objections to the claims stand.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Dent et al (Dent), U.S. Patent No. 6,542,716.

Regarding claim 1, Dent discloses an apparatus for use by an access point in a wireless networking communications environment comprising logic for scanning a plurality of radio frequency channels during a scan interval, logic for receiving messages from other access points on the plurality of radio frequency channels during the scan interval (col. 4, lines 12-23), logic for maintaining a channel map having an entry for each of the plurality of radio frequency channels, and if one or more messages was received on a channel, the corresponding entry further including an AP-ID for at least one of the access points that sent a message on the channel (col. 9, line 62-col. 10, line 2, col. 13, line 31-col. 4, line 2); logic for selecting a channel from the channel map; logic for transmitting messages on the selected channel during a claim interval, logic for receiving messages from other access points on the selected channel during the claim interval, logic for ascertaining whether the apparatus should commence communications with other wireless devices on the selected channel based at least in-part upon characteristics of the messages received on the channel and such that unnecessary channel overlap with the other access points is mitigated (col. 13, line 43-col. 14, line 2).

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 2 and 3 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims, and once proper dependency is determined.

6. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: Prior art fails to suggest or render obvious logic which selects a channel having either no AP-ID or an AP-D that has the lowest stored power level.

Prior art further fails to suggest or render obvious logic for evaluating the power level of messages received on a selected channel, and if the power level of messages received on the selected channel is below a threshold, the logic for ascertaining indicates that the apparatus should commence communications with other wireless devices on the selected channel.

Conclusion

7. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
